

Drawing competition in SSMC raises awareness in Environmental, Safety and Information Security aspects

by Ida Ho, Marcom for Fab News

Each year SSMC WSH (Workplace Safety & Health), Environmental and ISMS (Information Security Management System) Committee Drawing competition simulates many participants to take an active interest to our future, our environment and our safety. This year, tapping into the creative spirit of our staff and their children, we have expanded the scope of drawing, and included Information Security category also. More than 50 entries were collected from various departments; each entry carries important messages of how we can save the environment, paying attention to workplace safety and safeguard IT security.

On 4 September, a prize-giving ceremony of the drawing competition was held at SSMC cafeteria. The sponsors of organizing committee, Collin Tan, Chee TH and Risk management staff extended their warm welcome to all participants attended the event. Mr. Jagadish was the guest of honor. He congratulated those who won the prizes and explained the importance of WSH, Environment and ISMS in SSMC. Among the young winners are the children of our staff age from 2 years old to 13 years old; they were awarded with attractive book vouchers; SSMC staff winners also received cash vouchers in recognition to their strong support.

Winners of EHS and ISMS Drawing Competition 2012 with Jag, Collin & Risk Management staffs

After the prize giving ceremony, children had a valuable opportunity of visiting their parent office and took a Fab tour. Also, they had the exciting chance of posing in Clean Room “costume”. The event was a huge success. Thanks for all those who participated and making it so incredibly memorable.

Display of Winning Entries at Cafeteria

From left: Jag, Bernadette Chong, Ida Ho

Children had fun experience wearing cleanroom gown